ENTIRE NUMBER OF TROOPS EN-CAMPED HERE IN PROCE-
SION, YESTERDAY MORN-

WAS GRAND SPECTACLE

Over Twelve Hundred Soldiers, State
and National Troops, Participated—Unparalleled Event in Janesville's History.

What proved to be the banner attraction of the morning of the Fourth was the grand military procession in which all the state militia companies encamped here, eight in number, the Fort Sheridan Battery detachment of

command of Captain Westfall, followed. The Rockford drum corps of Spanish War Veterans led the next division of the parade, and behind them came the members of the order in convention here. The last division of the parade was headed by the Ex-nessville band, and was followed by the Janesville Boy Scouts in uniform,
under the direction of their leader,
Capt. Jacke.

Choirs greeted the Scouts as they passed along, and at every point of the march they received applause.
They carried themselves in true military style which reflected credit on the training which they had received.
The entire spectacle of the parade
advancing down West Milwaukee street was most imposing. Never before in the history of Janesville has there been such a fine display of the military and the sight inspired the throngs on the streets into patriotic outbursts of applause. The militia troops marched perfectly, the batteries of artillery were in shipshape,
and there was no detail lacking to make the pageant the grandest military event ever witnessed in Janesville.

London, July 5.—England's deep-

the German government, according to reports in London today. England, it is said, is most anxious to enlist the support of the United States in the Moroccan situation. The possession of Agadir would put Germany closer to South America than are the main United States ports, and with the opening of the Panama canal would give that nation a great trade advantage, according to the Daily Telegraph.

killed and hurt live at Stevens Point,
Wis.
Both trains stayed on the track.

Western Crops Said to Be Burned Up

Chicago, July 5.—The continuance of the withering heat in the corn belt was reflected in the excited corn market today. Early figures showing an extreme advance of 4 1/2 buying orders in the flooded pit.
July advanced to 65, Sept. to 65,
and oats shared in the excitement, advancing 2 1/2 cents. The business of oats was on a huge scale.
The official report showed a falling off of 28 per cent in the condition of the crop in Iowa.

A telegram from Kansas City says:
"Temperatures, Saturday and Sunday, in the fields was 105 to 115.

Wisconsin Legislature Will Not Close

According to Reports.

Madison, Wis., July 5.—It is considered certain here today that the great number of bills before Governor Mc-Govern which he has not yet acted on will prevent the Wisconsin legislature
from adjourning before late next week.

Perfunctory sessions of both houses
of the Wisconsin legislature were held here today. Three members of the assembly and Speaker Ingram were present, while Lieutenant Governor Morris was the only member of the senate present at the session, although a few other senators arrived later in the day. Several bills were recalled from the governor for the correction of errors in section numbers.

JANESVILLE SCOUTS
MADE INITIAL PUBLIC APPEARANCE TUESDAY

Very Creditable Showing Was Made
by Boys in Monster Military Procession.

Yesterday morning at the time of the military parade, at 11 o'clock, Janesville's Boy Scouts made their first appearance in their new uniforms, and gave the general public a chance to see what had been done by the boys and those in charge of them. Dressed in their regulation scout uniforms of khaki trousers,
shirts, leggings, and felt slouch hats,
the boys marched behind the regular troops and passed before the governor's reviewing stand. There were thirty-two of the scouts, marching four abreast in eight ranks, and they gave a fine exhibition of what boys can do
when they have a chance.

The boys were given quite an ovation
when they reached the stand in front of the park. As they came toward the stand they were announced
as "Young America," and as they passed the governor and the other gentlemen in the reviewing stand, removed their hats and saluted them.

The formation and order in which the boys marched was very good, and was the subject of much comment
among those who saw them. Capt.
Jacke, who has been drilling them,
was especially pleased with their work, which he said was as good or better than that of the regular troops in the parade. Considering the length of time which they have had to work
the boys deserve much credit, as well as Capt. Jacke.

The boys experienced some little difficulty in getting their suits in time,
due to bungling of the orders in New York City, but they came at the last moment and the boys hustled into
them and took their place in the parade.

The enthusiasm over the movement
is steadily increasing, and with seventy boys already enrolled, bids fair to give Janesville one of the largest companies in this section of the country.

Fourth of July celebration here. Former occasions have seen the city
crowded with pleasure-seeking multi-

many people as regularly entertained as yesterday. On every side last evening was heard the verdict, "It was the best yet." The invasion of the city by the celebration throngs began in earnest on Monday evening. Every train into the city brought scores of

No part of the county was not represented and with the local residents
in full force, the throng was a sight to behold.

Hotel and Rockford residents were brought into the city on the interur-
ban, which ran on a half hour schedule and with trailers on each car.
None before in the history of the company had they handled such throngs.

From the country districts hundreds
and hundreds of rigs of every description brought the expectant people,
and the hitch barns and livery stables
were taxed to their utmost capacity
in providing for the horses and vehicles. Buggies and carriages were lined on both sides of the streets for several blocks near the hitch barn on Franklin street, and other barns were correspondingly rushed.

Up and down the streets on both sides from the depots to the Court House park and down North Main street were the crowds taking in the sights and enjoying themselves to the utmost. Not a dull moment could be noted during the entire time. The two big street parades in the morning and the band concerts by the expert musicians made the morning pass speedily. The sham battle at the Fair grounds and the various attractions down town occupied the afternoon.

Hotels and restaurants did a wholesale business and scores of extra waiters and waitresses were brought into service to wait on the guests. Rooms were at a premium and every available bed in all the hotel-ettes were taken. Aside from this, persons who had registered at the hotels there were a large number who had taken rooms
from persons who had their places
registered at the celebration headquarters.

From early in the morning it was evident that the heat would be terrible. Expectations were realized and at noon thermometers all over town were at the hundred mark. While it was not the hottest day of the year,
it was well up toward the record
breakers. In spite of the sun's rays everyone seemed to make the most of it and no one complained, for they

Second Award and H. L. Mc-Namara Float Was Given
Third Place.

The first of the big parades in yesterday's celebration was the civic parade under the direction of Chairman Eugene T. Fish. The display was the handsomest of its kind ever witnessed in the city of Janesville, each exhibitor putting forth special efforts

to rival his competitors in the beauty of the exhibit.

The float of J. M. Bostwick & Sons
was awarded first prize. W. J. Hill won the second award, and third honors went to the exhibit of H. L.
McNamara.

The judges were W. H. Wilkin of
New York, Dr. A. Post of Ripon, Wis., and T. E. Hammon of Ft. Adolph.

The parade formed on Dodge and Pleasant streets and the line of march was from Locust street to West Milwaukee street, down Milwaukee street
to the corner of Main street, up North Main to North First street, east on North First to North Third street, south
on North Third to East Milwaukee street, on East Milwaukee to Main street again, and south on South Main street to South Third street. From South Third street the procession turned north on Park street, turned again on Court street, and from there to Pleasant street, disbanding at the place of formation. A pleasing feature of the parade was that during the time the parade was passing along the streets the use of fireworks and the dynamite canon was suspended.

The parade was headed by Chief of Police George Appleby. Behind him came Chairman E. T. Fish in a single rig decorated with bunting, followed by C. W. Schwartz in his Monitor car, which was prettily decorated with bunting. In a Monitor car, driven by Howard Green, a boy of little girls dressed in white were seated. A Monitor truck bearing the sign, "Manila," followed, Earl St. Chiro driving. The Monitor company also had an auto bus in the parade. The machine carried a number of people and E. D.
Manley and J. E. Norling occupied the driver's seat.

Schiller & McKee and the Elford Lumber company entered floats. The Monitor trucks used by both companies being decorated with bunting.
E. J. Roessling drove the delivery car

Next in line was the Mandt Wagon
company's band of eight.

A novel and comical float was the first of six entered by the Benson and Lane bakery. On a wagon a representation of an old windmill was built and back of this Stanley Day,
dressed in woman's garb, went through energetic motions imitating a woman kneading bread. The members of the Madison and Janesville ball teams, on a large drey, went with the parade through the streets. At the corner of North Academy and West Milwaukee streets, the governor's party and the reception committee drove the length of Milwaukee
street to Main street with the parade.

Huge sacks of flour placed in flers
were included in the Big Jo flour exhibit of the Benson & Lane bakery.
A six-horse team, covered with white dusters, pulled the float. George Haugen drove the outfit and a groom
walked at the head of each horse.
H. L. McNamara's exhibit of hardware entered the parade at the corner
of Franklin and Milwaukee streets.
The float consisted of their wagon
gayly decorated with an inverted V.

The fire chief's auto, with the chemical equipment, two hand-extinguishers and two men were sent to the fair grounds yesterday afternoon to serve during the sham battle and put out any fires which might break out at any time.

Saved from the Surgeon's Knife

Mrs. Rose Was Told She Must Submit to Operation to Save Her Life—Chiropractic Adjustments Saved Her.
THIS WILL INTEREST MANY WOMEN.

Raymond
Puddicombe

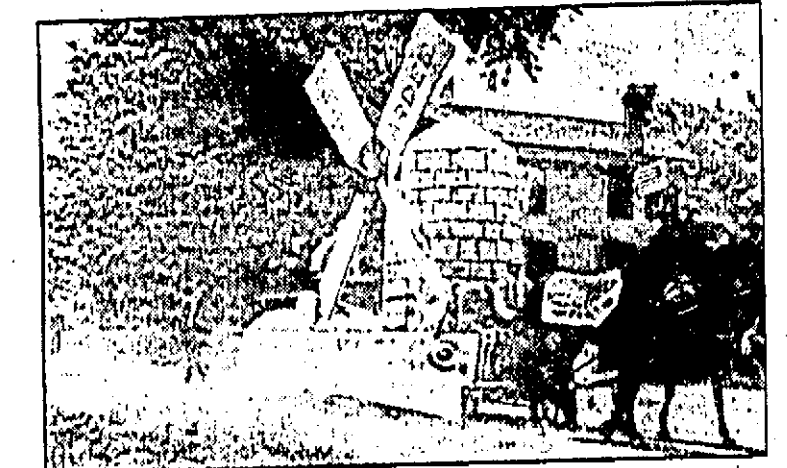

"To Whom It May Concern: I suffered for thirteen years, suffering as only women can appreciate, and after years of my physician, after calling in another physician for consultation told me that the only way to save my life was by an operation.

"I felt that I would rather die than submit to an operation, and hearing of the success which Puddicombe & Puddicombe were having in Chiropractic adjustments was prevailed on to let them handle my case. Though doubtful at first I must now say that they have brought about a perfectly normal condition, thus allowing nature to bring back my health, and I would advise any woman who suffers as I do to lose no time in calling on the Chiropractors and becoming well, as I do believe that this science is the most wonderful ever known. I will cheerfully answer any letter from suffering women who write me and enclose stamp." Mrs. L. S. Rose, R. R. No. 7, Rockford, Ill.

Chiropractic Adjustments relieve the pressure on the nerves leading to the diseased organ through the spinal bones and permit the unobstructed life current from the brain along the spinal cord permitting nature to bring back the normal condition. A perfect spine does not cause disease, a subluxated spine will cause disease. Your hope is here today.

BENNINGSON & LANE'S FLOAT.

persons who were here as guests of relatives and friends, and many who found quarters in the hotels.

Tuesday morning, however, the inroad became unprecedented in its proportions. Early trains into the city were loaded to their utmost capacity and numerous extra coaches which were attached to all the regular trains
did not suffice to handle the people.
Every available space in the cars was crowded and even the baggage cars
were filled with persons anxious to be with Janesville on the occasion of the grand military tournament.

From every part of the county the visitors came. Green, Dane, Jefferson, Walworth, counties furnished immense throngs. Milwaukee, Chicago and other large cities in Illinois and Wisconsin sent hundreds, and the wonderful thing about it all was that every person found a welcome and an imposing entertainment such as was never expected.

Estimates made by persons handling
the crowds, and formed from data received from the two railroads and the Interurban office, place the number
well above twenty-five thousand people and in the neighborhood of thirty thousand. On the train from Pontiac and Atton, which arrives here early in the morning, there were over four hundred people. The early train from the north, from Watertown, Jefferson and Adams, brought seven hundred people. The trains from Evansville and Madison were loaded and it was estimated that there had been a general exodus of fully sixty per cent of the inhabitants from the former
place, all bound for the demonstrations at Janesville.

Other towns between Janesville and Madison nearly emptied their neighbor, Evansville, in their quota of representatives to the Hoover City.

At the St. Paul depot between ten and half past one of the densest crowds that gathered anywhere during the day. Five big trains filled to the tops drew into the city from every direction. From the west came the throngs from Mineral Point and Green county towns, and this train was one of the most heavily loaded, some seven hun-

thousand. Up and down the streets in the hot sun the crowds poured, looking here and there in extreme road
nature, jubilant and well behaved, enjoying the sights.

At the sham battle in the afternoon
at the Fair grounds the terrific temperature was perhaps at its height,
and it was here that there was the most discomfort. Three members of the state militia while standing at attention at the governor's stand were temporarily overcome and had to be revived. One of these was Private Hebler of company H, Monroe.

Persons in the crowd also suffered,
but no prostrations were reported.
The entire performance was keenly enjoyed in spite of the high range of the mercury.

The people all over the city were very well behaved and there were no disturbances. Accidents were few and none were reported as being due to fire crackers or fireworks. In the thickest of the throngs about the depots with the trains moving in and out,
no one was injured. Everything seemed to combine to make Janesville
safe and safe during the big celebration.

Fethers, Reverend David Baeten of the First Congregational church offi-

ered having Janesville as their destination. From Edgerton it seemed that fully one-half the city's population
had made the journey to be present at the big celebration. From Stoughton, Milton Junction and other points in that direction, hundreds poured into the city.

From Milwaukee, Whitewater, Milton, came the crowds, and the Chie-
go and Davis Junction trains rivaled
the rest in bringing the multitudes.

HILL'S FLOAT IN PARADE—SECOND PRIZE.

used by the Roessling Bros' grocery.

Next came the float of J. M. Bostwick & Sons, the winner of the first prize. On a large flat wagon, a canopy of pink and green supported by pillars was erected, and five little girls, the Misses Ruth Bostwick, Carolyn and Sheryl Richardson, Harriet and Josephphine, Carl, were seated under the canopy. White linen dusters were placed on the horses and each animal
was attended by a groom.

A mechanical display was given on the float of E. D. Burton, where three gasoline engines, operating two pumps
and a washing machine were in operation. The outfit was given by George Little.

"Old Dutch Cleanser" was advertised in the parade yesterday, a single buggy with W. M. Kemmerer driving, pushing along the streets, the driver
throwing out samples to the crowds.

C. F. Brockhaus' delivery wagon,
made gay with decorations, took part in the parade. Mr. Brockhaus driving the outfit himself.

P. H. Porter's vacuum-cleaning outfit, decorated with bunting, was driven by Mr. Porter, two little girls being seated with him in the machine.

Ingenuously was shown in the float
of W. J. Hill, cement contractor, a framework to represent a boat was built about Mr. Hill's automobile and bunting and other decorations gave the float a handsome appearance. Appropriate signs, such as "You'll Succeed in Janesville," and others were placed about the framework. Overhead Miss Frances Hill was seated. In the bow were Margaret and Nellie Hill and Sophie Truitt; and in the rear and stern of the framework, Hazel Randall; W. J. Hill, driver; John, Frank, Emanuel, William and Joseph Hill, Jr., and Alma Houghton and Margaret Manz.

ed Court street. A large platform wagon, drawn by four horses, was prettily adorned with bunting and around the edges, typewriters were placed. In the center on a raised platform three young ladies operated machines.

Fire During Parade.

While the parade was passing down South Main street a still alarm of fire was received at the fire stations
to extinguish a grass fire at the corner of South Third and Division streets. The department had to make the run to the blaze through the crowded streets and considerable difficulty was experienced in avoiding the people on the thoroughfares and the floats in the parade. Two of the wagons and the chemical auto were sent out, but the flames were put out by the use of brooms. On the return from the fire, the fire patrol wagon
ran into a farmer's buggy on South Main street, bending the rear axle and breaking one of the wheels. The occupants were helped out of the carriage, but were uninjured.

DEPARTMENT CALLED OUT

O'CLOCK THIS MORNING

Alarm Rung In From Box 15 for Fire
In Awning at Dicknell Manufacturing Company's Office.

About a quarter to one this morning the fire department responded to a fire call from box 15 at the corner of Academy and Wall streets. The fire proved to be only a blaze in an awning at the Dicknell Manufacturing company's office which was extinguished by the time the department arrived. It was at first reported that one of the hotels nearby was on fire
and the extension ladder wagon went out on the call.

OFFICERS NAMED BY LADIES' AUXILIARY

CORA R. EVANS OF MADISON WAS NAMED AS DEPARTMENT
PRESIDENT AT MEETING
THIS MORNING.

SESSIONS END TODAY

Officers Were Installed This Afternoon—Mrs. Sarah Dougherty of This City Named Jr. Vice President—News of Sessions.

Mrs. Cora R. Evans, wife of Major Evans of Madison, was elected department president of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Spanish War Veterans at the meeting of that body, held at the veterans' headquarters this morning. About fifty delegates and members were in attendance representing the eleven auxiliaries in as many cities throughout the state. Enthusiasm ran high at each of the meetings held by the ladies and their choice of officers for the ensuing year speaks well for the wisdom of the members and foresight for the organization a degree of progress and enthusiasm that will eclipse even their remarkable records of the past.

Other officers elected were: Senior Vice President, Mrs. Nettie Anderson, Racine; Junior Vice President, Mrs. Sarah Dougherty, Janesville; Chaplain, Mrs. Alice McCauley, Beloit; Treasurer, Mrs. Anna Hansen, Racine; Inspector, Mrs. Phoebe Armstrong, Milwaukee; Historian, Mrs. Margaret Manion, Milwaukee; Patriotic Instructor, Mrs. Serena Westphal, Manitowish; Judge Advocate, Mrs. Phyllis Marshall, Fond du Lac.

Delegates to the national council were also elected as follows: Mrs. Anna Hansen and Mrs. Anna Redway of Milwaukee, and Mrs. Nettie Anderson of Racine. Alternates elected are: Mrs. Agnes Gunders, Milwaukee; Mrs. Mabel Dowd, Sheboygan, and Mrs. Elizabeth Hanson, Janesville.

Mrs. Margaret Manion, the outgoing department president, was presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers by the local auxiliary. Mrs. Bert Hill, in presenting the token of esteem, dwelt at length upon the faithful service rendered by Mrs. Manion and endeavored to portray the feelings of sincere regard entertained for her. The council presented Mrs. Manion with a beautiful gold pin emblematic of the office which she has held with much credit to the council and to herself.

Installation of the newly elected officers took place this afternoon at two o'clock under the direction of a color team composed of Janesville ladies with Miss Camilla Manion of Milwaukee as director. Mrs. Bert Hill, assistant conductor, Louise Dixon, Sarah Dougherty, Collie Williams, Elizabeth Hanson, Freda Jacko, and Helen Miller composed the team, and the installation services were very elaborate and a credit to the conductor and to the local team.

Delegates to the state council of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Spanish War Veterans, about thirty-five in number from the eleven auxiliary councils in as many cities of the state were in attendance at the very interesting meeting held at the veterans' headquarters on Monday afternoon and continued today. Greetings were exchanged between the veterans and the ladies and feelings of the most kindly nature were expressed on both sides.

The visiting delegates were the guests of the local council and were entertained in the council rooms and at the Myers hotel, where they and the veterans had their headquarters during the three days. President Manion, in her opening address to the members present at this department meeting, as well as at the meeting of the state council expressed for the visiting members the appreciation of the hospitality extended to them by the members in this city.

It was especially pleasing to all concerned to notice the feelings of mutual good will as expressed before the different meetings of the Ladies' Auxiliary and between them and the veterans.

At the meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Spanish War Veterans held in the Veterans' Headquarters about fifty delegates were in attendance from the eleven auxiliaries in the state. State President Margaret Manion of Milwaukee, presided at the meeting of the state council called at 10:15 Monday morning, at which the following committees were appointed:

Another committee composed of Mrs. E. Grinnell, Beloit, Miss C. Manion, Milwaukee, and Mrs. B. Hill, Janesville, was appointed to extend greeting to the Spanish War Veterans. This committee received an enthusiastic reception from the veterans and the exchange of greetings and good wishes was evidence of the kindly feelings existing between the two organizations.

The telegram committee sent messages of greeting to the national president, Ida M. Galloway, Washington, D. C., to Elizabeth Alexander, the first national president of the organization and to Alice M. Cooling, first department president, appraising them of the enthusiastic work being done by the state convention.

Order of Lizards. After the first regular meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the United Spanish War Veterans several members of that organization who are united together as the Order of the Lizards, an auxiliary to the Order of the Snake, was called to order by Mrs. Margaret Manion, who, as department president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, was ex-officio Supreme Gila Monitor, the chief officer of this organization. This body is known as the Tribe of Lacantilla and is the only auxiliary to the Snake in the United States. This tribe was organized a year ago at Sheboygan and the meeting at this time was the second held by the tribe.

A swamp in which the tribe assembled was appropriately prepared to impress upon the old members the grandeur of 'swamp life and with all that does to make jungle life attractive and impressive the tribe initiated eighteen new members.

Besides Mrs. Cora Evans, who is ex-officio, the new supreme officer of this organization, the following are the other newly-elected officers:

Gila Monitor, or president—Mrs. Emma Grinnell, Beloit.

Gila, senior vice president—Mrs. Julietta Morris, Beloit.

Iguana, junior vice president—Mrs. C. R. Evans, Madison.

Chamoleon, secretary—Mrs. Anna Hansen, Milwaukee.

It is generally conceded it more room is needed it should be provided, the big question for the district to decide is, the proper thing to do.

Have Been Sold.

This is a Photograph of No. 1,000,000.

Shipped June 24, 1911.

TODAY this millionth owner of a National Cash Register can say, with every other user:

"I can now make more profit out of my business and give better values to my customers.

"I can handle more customers in the same time and in the same space—divide my running charges among more sales—and take a smaller profit on each sale.

"My business is systematized. I do not rely upon memory. I have no leaks. I know where my money comes from and where it goes, therefore, I control my losses.

"Because I have an automatic record of every penny I receive, I know where I stand; do not over-estimate my buying capacity; carry no more stock than my capital justifies; take my cash discounts; sell my goods for less and still make as much money as formerly.

"My store is a safer store to deal in. I guarantee every sale—give you a receipt which protects you against any dispute or misunderstanding.

"My clerks can be relied upon. With an automatic and indelible history of every purchase, I know what you paid, when you paid it, and to whom it was paid.

"A five-year old child can buy here and the receipt guards you as thoroughly as though you came yourself.

"The National Cash Register is a good thing for me, a good thing for you and a good thing for my employees.

"It makes me more systematic, therefore a better merchant.

"It makes you certain of the lowest prices and the best possible treatment.

"It places my clerks above suspicion.

"It renders our relations more profitable and more agreeable."

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

Janesville is today struggling with the question of what constitutes a sane Fourth? It has not been settled definitely, as yet, but it may be said that seldom has this city entertained the thousands of visitors it did Tuesday without any serious accidents. The parades, sham battle and military maneuvers all tended to attract "Young America" into other lines than a noisy demonstration.

From time immemorial one man's holiday has been another's bore. From time immemorial, too, one man's idea of fun has had a tendency to make some other man sad. The Fourth of July does not mean the same thing to all Americans, native or naturalized. To some it stands for a great idea, to others simply for a day off, to some it is an abstraction, to others one of the most concrete of facts. So that it was folly to lay down any hard and fast rule for its observance. All that reasonable people the country over are asking now is that, so far as it is possible, the national holiday should hereafter be celebrated with regard to the requirements of common sense.

When an ordinary normal person is pleased over anything in particular or everything in general he does not go out on the street and shout. It is not customary for those who come gradually or suddenly to realize that they are in possession of priceless privileges to fire off pistols or explode bombs. In the natural course of things, the ordinary man, woman or child who wishes to express his or her satisfaction does not touch off a pin wheel or send up a skyrocket.

It is a satisfying thought that Americans are coming more and more to look upon the Fourth of July as a day with a meaning that can neither be clouded by smoke nor drowned in noise. More and more it is coming to stand in their consciousness for the liberation of human thought.

From numerous indications it is apparent that a change has come over the spirit of the people in regard to the country's natal holiday. There is to be less of heartlessness in the method of celebration, and more of the old-fashioned, hearty appreciation of the conditions, institutions, and ideals for which the country, as a whole, stands. One remarkable feature is the larger extent to which commercial and industrial organizations, civic associations, and patriotic societies are working together to redeem the day from its lapse into a condition of youthful lawlessness. Municipal pride has been stirred, and the public authorities are joining or taking the lead in many towns throughout the nation to make the day count in the upbuilding of what is sound and worthy in the life of the people.

There is a commercial cynicism which sneers at oratory, dress parades, and the music of bands as a part of the popular expression of patriotic sentiments. Possibly this may have some basis in the knowledge that there is much that is wrong in our business relations. But in spite of embittering experiences of some, the spirit of appreciation of the essential contents of our national heritage, whether they be material, moral or social, is still strong and sound among the rank and file of the people. Wherever men, women, and children gather together in respectful attitude toward the flag and all that is implied back of it, there we have the strengthening of the qualities which make a nation mighty for achievement in whatever rightful direction it sets itself to work.

Independence day is not a day for the pessimist. It is the optimist's holiday, the finding of youth and faith and trust in home and God and native land.

When you bring a thousand soldier boys into the city and keep them for thirty-six hours and then send them away all satisfied, you can rest assured the name of Janesville will be long remembered in their minds.

The Fair Grounds will prove their worth in days to come as a public recreation park but for the past three days it has been a pretty hot place to visit.

Governor McGovern was more than pleased with his reception yesterday. He expressed himself as delighted with the way in which Janesville celebrated.

Base ball teams in Janesville have a hard time to exist. This city is full of fans, but why do they not support the teams that are organized here?

The list of injuries does not even contain a single item of lost eyes or legs or arms or even fingers. A fine record.

Janesville is to be congratulated over the manner in which the crowds were handled by the police yesterday.

While Chief Klein's men were not busy yesterday they were ready at all times to answer to a call for duty.

Though June brides are greatly prized, there is no restriction on the July brand of the same species.

Anyway, the express companies made hay while the sun shone, all right.

ASSOCIATION PLANS BOYS' CAMP AT LAKE

Juniors, Members of Y. M. C. A. To Go Into Camp At Lake Delavan July 17.

On July 17th, at Delavan Lake Assembly Grounds, the fourteenth annual boys' camp, conducted by the Y. M. C. A., will be opened. This camp is intended for all the "Y" boys who wish to attend, but the attendance is restricted to the A. Junior, the B. Junior, and the Junior Inter-mediate classes. The number of boys is limited to thirty in one division, but if more than thirty boys wish to go, they will be taken in more than one section, all of the various sections to go at different times.

In the past, the Delavan Assembly Camp has been the largest in Wisconsin. The camp has its various officers, and their assistants, and there is a regular system of rules laid down for the boys to follow. The camp will be divided into groups of six boys each, and at the head of each group will be placed a senior, whose duty it will be to look out for the boys under his control. The general supervision, as in the years past, will be in the hands of Mr. Klein.

The boys will be in camp for ten days, and while there will be taught to swim, and will be taken on hikes through the country; there will be field days for the fellows to try their skill in and they will practice all sorts of athletic exercises. At 7:30 Friday evening a meeting will be held at the Y. M. C. A. to determine the number of boys who are going and to make final arrangements for the camp.

COMPLAINT REGARDING EDGERTON TRAIN SERVICE

Edgerton People Were Disappointed On Account of Lack of Accommodations—Other News.

Edgerton, July 5.—Janesville's three days' celebration was the center of attraction for all of Edgerton and surrounding country on the Fourth. Some complaint was found, however, with the train service both to and from the celebration and fully sixty per cent of those who had intended to take in the events were disappointed, and either had to stay at home or go by some other means.

Other News.

Bill Rousch today took charge of rural route No. 1 out of Edgerton in place of Henry Miller who is ill.

Miss Mary Watson, of the department store at Stoughton, is passing a thirty-day vacation at her home in this city.

John Thoreson and family are taking a short vacation, passing the time with friends in the country.

Misses Ethel Ward, Olga Dohertie, Alma Neuman and Sophia Heggen of Milwaukee arrived Tuesday to join a company of Milwaukee people and the H. C. Schmelling family in campfire at camp Helen on the banks of Lake Koshkonong.

With no celebration in Edgerton the center attraction in the evening was a ball in Academy hall. The hall was beautifully decorated in the national colors and presented a grand appearance. Eighty-four numbers were sold and the American harp orchestra furnished the inspiration.

With the recent train service the management of the Gazette having succeeded in securing a permit from the government, the readers of the Gazette are now enabled to receive their paper forty minutes earlier than before. This applies to those receiving the paper by carrier.

Telephone Competition is Worth Dollars to You

The experience of other cities such as OSHKOSH, EAU CLAIRE, FT. ATKINSON, FOND DU LAC, MADISON, BELOIT, RACINE could be duplicated here in Janesville just as well as not if the Rock County Telephone Co. were driven from the field. Each of the cities named formerly had Independent Telephone Exchanges and they have each been merged with the competitive line resulting in BUT ONE COMPANY in each field and as a consequence telephone rates have been boosted. . .

A Word to the Wise is Sufficient

The Rock County Telephone Company has invested here $120,000 of Janesville money and employs 38 Janesville people. Its service offers you connection with its 2230 telephones in Janesville and Rock County, your friends, your neighbors, your business people. Every day one new patron becomes a Rock County Telephone subscriber. WE ARE LOOKING FOR YOUR APPLICATION TODAY.

DRESS PARADE GOOD

Under Command of Major John

For the first time in the history of the Fifth Field Artillery, the colors of that regiment were dipped, while passing in review to the governor of a state. To the President, to a commanding officer of a higher rank than a brigadier general and to a governor of a state, only are the colors of the regular army dipped while passing in review. "Tuesday was the first time in the history of the regiment it had been reviewed by an official of sufficient rank to confer this honor and here at the military demonstration in Janesville, Governor McGovern was thus signally honored.

When the big line of citizen soldiers and regulars lined up before the grand stand for review yesterday, with the headquarters band of the Fifth Artillery at the right of line, mounted, playing martial airs, eight companies of infantry in center in perfect alignment and the two batteries, state and regulars at the extreme right of line it made a most imposing sight.

Seated on a big horse was Major men with their arms folded on the big guns eyes front, all the soldier as seen in actual experience.

Now the troops have moved away. A long line appears at the extreme west end of the grounds. Pop goes a rifle, another, a third and soon a volley. The skirmishers are at work. Down to the left of the line troops the battery. Chalmers and, a pair and a "boom" and the skirmish is on. Behind them is seen a long line of troops marching up into line.
Meanwhile at the extreme eastern end of the field stands Ft. Reliance. It's apparently solid stone walls, are fitted with loop holes, but seeming the protection of the fort, out into the open ground in front sweeps the infantry. Company I, from Beloit, Captain Charles Buck an old Janesville boy in command. "An skirmishers" and down they drop. Through the long grass they creep and "pop," "pop" go their guns. Behind them Battery F, Lt. Allen in command, swings into line and a second later the muzzles of the guns of the regulars are pointed imaginary shot and shell into the ranks of the "enemy" but a few rods away.
On they come, infantry in company

To the stirring call of Adjutants forward trotted these officers. Then came the trooping of the line by the mounted band. Most impressive and one to wake warlike spirit in the breasts of all old soldiers.

Quickly came the order, "Officers front and center" and down the long lines of infantry marched the officers of the various commands, meeting in the center of the line, forward as one man to where Major Joachim sat, swords at salute, orders given and cracker of the rifles all added to making it realistic.

Seven thousand people braved the heat of the day to witness it. Old veterans of Sixty-One who had manned big guns in those days, who had charged fortifications in face of a gallant line, veterans of '98, who never smoked powder in battle, but who had drilled and counter-marched during the hot days of the summer months of that year, all cheered and enjoyed the spectacle.

Then around the field they swung, breaking into a trot and back around the track at almost a gallop they came, a thrilling sight, men in places, guns ready for instant use and every bit of harness flinging to the music of the band stationed in the center of the field.

To those who had never witnessed a dress parade and review it was inspiring. It was a lesson in modern warfare. Men marched and rode like automatons. As one unit the infantry passed in company front, "eyes right" officers swords at salute, artillery

SPANISH VETERANS NAME OFFICERS AND CLOSE CONVENTION

JAMES G. ARMSTRONG OF MIL-WAUKEE WAS NAMED DE-PARTMENT COMMANDER
AT MEETING THIS MORNING.

MANY IN ATTENDANCE

One Hundred and Ten Delegates From Different Parts of the State
Were at Sessions.—At Appleton Next Year.

After a series of unusually interesting meetings during the past two days the United Spanish War Veterans met this morning and elected officers for the ensuing year. The veterans, about 110 in number from different parts of the state, have been making themselves at home in the department headquarters and the spirit of good fellowship and enthusiasm, which has prevailed throughout the entire encampment, has been gratifying, both to the local veterans and to the many visitors. The visitors who came to pitch their tents on the Janesville camp grounds are bringing camp with feelings of regret that their stay cannot be prolonged and the local veterans are sorry that they must leave so soon the genial road fellows of their visiting comrades.

The officers elected are:
Department Commander—James G. Armstrong, Milwaukee.
Dept. Senior Vice Commander—Thomas E. Kingston, Madison.
Dept. Junior Vice Commander—Nicholas Groetzinger, Chilton.
Dept. Inspector—Charles G. Juneau, Milwaukee.

Dept. Judge Advocate—M. S. Dudgeon, Madison.
Dept. Surgeon—T. W. Evans, Madison.
Dept. Chaplain—Rev. E. H. Smith, Oaklawn.
Dept. Marshal—H. W. Klopff, Neillsville.
Dept. Adjutant—W. W. Robertson, Milwaukee.

The next annual encampment will be held at Appleton and delegates to the same were elected as follows:
P. H. Corbelle, Fond du Lac; T. F. Hammonson, Ft. Atkinson; J. C. Brandel, Ft. Atkinson; A. Teupfer, Sheboygan.

Alternates elected are: C. F. Hanson, Janesville; H. W. Klopff, Neillsville; C. E. Young, Monroe; W. C. Dow, Sheboygan.
This has proven one of the most successful encampments ever held by the veterans and if the selection of their officers today can be taken as an indication of the work for the future it is easy to see that the meetings of this organization will increase in interest as the years go by, and the city of Appleton is to be congratulated in having been selected as the place for the next encampment of this delegation of jolly good fellows.

THIS CITY'S FOURTH WAS SAFE AND SANE WITHOUT ACCIDENTS

Janesville Escapes With No Accidents
Due to Explosives or Fireworks—Remarkable Record.

When one considers the intense heat which afflicted the city yesterday, the great crowds that thronged our streets, and the fact that it was a Fourth of July celebration, it seems very remarkable indeed that there were no accidents or even deaths. As a rule, the Fourth always claims a toll of injured and dead, even when there are no special events such as drive the fireworks to our city yesterday, but just plain fireworks. It was for this reason that there was agitation for a fireless Fourth in this city, but the city fathers thought it unwise. But with the immense crowd here yesterday and the amount of fireworks used, it seems nearly miraculous that Janesville escaped with no long list of injured.

As far as it has been possible to ascertain, there were absolutely no serious injuries in this city yesterday; in fact, it has been impossible to discover any cases of injury at all, minor or serious. Credit for such a record can be given to various sources, but in Janesville's case too much cannot be given to the police who were very vigilant and earnest in their attempt to keep order, and who did more than anything else to make such a thing possible. However, now that we have safely passed one such Fourth, we can all be thankful that in the future, due to the new law just passed by our legislators, there will be no more opportunity in Wisconsin for Fourth of July lists of dead and injured.

PRaise OFFICERS AND MEMBERS OF THE COMMITTEE

Chief of Police Appleby Lauds Work
of Members of Department And Praises Executive Committee of Celebration.

Words of commendation of the members of the police force of Janesville, regular and special officers, and praise for the committee in charge of the military celebration, were spoken this morning by Chief of Police Appleby in an interview with a Gazette representative.

"I never had a better squad of specialists," said the chief, "and I never saw men work harder for more hours in the boiling sun than did the regular members of the department and the special policemen. I feel that it was through their efforts and the kindness of the Fourth of July committee in giving the police the use of an automobile that the department was enabled to get through yesterday with as few accidents and disturbances as occurred."

"Considering the mass of people in the city it was very quiet as far as police affairs were concerned yesterday. There were practically no disturbances and only a few inoffensive drunks."

"In seventeen years of police work I have never seen a celebration handled in a more capable manner than the celebration yesterday was handled and the executive committee are certainly to be congratulated for carrying to completion such a large project. Every member of the committee is deserving of praise. Although there were a few complaints about the tents of the show on North Main street the majority of the people were highly pleased with the celebration."

SOLDIER THIEVES IDENTIFIED AND PUT IN CUSTODY

Artillerymen From Battery F Who Stole Chickens And Assaulted
Held in Guardhouse And May Be Court-martialed.

Five of the six men implicated in the thievery of chickens from the barn of F. H. Koebelin on Prospect avenue, early Monday morning, and the assault on Mr. Koebelin, were yesterday afternoon identified by Mr. Koebelin. Word was received yesterday from Col. Adams by Chief of Police Appleby that the men who took part in the robbery and assault had been discovered. At the request of the colonel the chief and Mr. Koebelin went to the regulars' camp near the fair grounds, at half past five o'clock yesterday afternoon and the men were brought to the commanding officer's quarters under a heavy guard.

Mr. Koebelin identified the men and the matter was left entirely to the military authorities to assume charge of. Col. Adams promised that the men would be kept in the guard-house until the battery returns to Fort Sheridan when they will be tried by a martial court to determine what shall be done with them. The colonel said the men would likely be given a sentence of from six months to one year in the guard-house and promised to endeavor to make them pay for the chickens stolen and pay for the clothes stolen when Mr. Koebelin was attacked.

The other member of the party, a teamster, will probably not be held as he did not take part in the assault and tried to persuade the others not to make the attack.

Thirsty Crowd Wandered About the

It was a hot, thirsty crowd that visited Janesville, Tuesday. The downtown public drinking fountain were inadequate to furnish the supply needed to quench the thirst and on the long tramp out to the fair grounds in the afternoon, the tubs of ice water and cool hoses run into tubs with inviting glasses placed at the residence of Mr. Fletcher, F. S. Sheldon and S. M. Smith were a veritable Godsend to the hot, thirsty crowd. The bubbling fountain in front of Green's plumbing shop was one of the most popular places in the city and averaged seven to nine persons a minute all day long.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

PLEASE, whatever you do, don't put what I have told you in your column, as I do not want any of my folks to know about it. I have been the victim of taunts ever since we had our misunderstanding, both from my sister and my aunt. Perhaps my mother would have understood, but I have none, and I can't bear to be misunderstood."

So a little girl ended the letter in which she had laid bare her heart and told her pathetic little love secret to me. "I have been the victim of taunts ever since our misunderstanding from both my sister and my aunt"—doesn't that make your blood boil?

It does mine. It just makes me wild to go to that aunt and sister and tell them what I think of the cruelty that drives an unhappy little girl to confide in and ask advice of a total stranger, and beg that stranger to keep her secrets from her own family.

Of course, I realize that the taunts weren't meant to be cruel. They were probably supposed to be merely funny. You see, the little girl's misunderstanding with her first lover, his failure to respond to her overtures and her hurt pride, appeared to these older people as something an exquisitely humorous situation, and they were just trying to make the most of it.

Nor is that attitude such an uncommon one. That's the saddest part of it all, and that's why I'm writing about it. It seems to be almost impossible for grown-up-ness, especially married grown-up-ness, not to look at the young people's first love affairs in this way. Many a young girl who needed the most tender sympathy and understanding when the wings of the great passion first brushed against her heart, has been shamed and tortured and driven into herself by taunts and sly allusions and laughter.

Little Jean is allowed to tease her unmercifully about the way she watches for the postman. Instead of being reproved, is applauded by laughter, when she comes up at the family dinner table with: "I know what made Jean late for dinner. She was waiting around, hoping Bob would come home with her." And even the presence of a guest does not deter married sister from saying with the self-righteousness of the safely married woman: "I should think, Jean, that you'd let Bob do the waiting."

Poor little Jean. She had not acknowledged over to her own heart that the reason she stopped this particular noon to consult the teacher about her college examinations, was that she knew Bob had to stay after school and couldn't walk home with her, as usual, unless she did.

Ever see a flower that someone had picked open instead of waiting for it to unfold in its natural time? You know how it looks. Well, that's the way Jean's heart felt.

"The little girl of my letter says: 'Perhaps my mother would have understood.' Perhaps she would have. And yet I have known others who didn't scruple to laugh at these 'cute' love affairs, as they called them. We do not laugh at cases of diphtheria or scarlet fever, merely because it is a light one, do we?"

But we might better do so than laugh at the young girl's first experience with the great, relentless, incurable disease of the ages.

Looking Upward.

Woman and the Fourth.

IT is interesting sometimes on anniversaries such as to-day to take a look backward and forward in regard to woman's part in them. In a way it gives a good idea of the progress she is making. Particularly is it illuminating to those who think she is making no progress worth considering.

Fifty or a hundred years ago, woman's part in the celebration of the Fourth was to prepare the festive meal in honor of the day, oversee the picnic baskets, look to it that the children were dressed properly; or, if she had none of these responsibilities, to dress herself prettily and go forth to enjoy the usual pleasures of the day. Generally speaking, this was woman's program. This was all that she was expected to do. Had she attempted to take any more serious part, she would have aroused quite a storm of talk, some of it none too kindly.

But how different is the situation to-day! In thousands of hospitals, she is gently and tenderly caring for those who are injured by to-day's celebration. As physician and as nurse, she has a recognized place to-day the world over. And so familiar now is the woman physician, that she excites no comment.

In many places to-day, woman will be among the public speakers. She will speak for suffrage, in gatherings of clubwomen, she will speak for various measures of reform, or for movements for betterment in the city, the schools, and the home. She will be found urging public playgrounds, and sanitary conditions in connection with a city's food supply, and special instruction for backward children, and all things which her woman's nature tells her are as necessary to civic housekeeping as to the individual home. She may even be found to-day marching in suffrage parades. And all these things she is doing with dignity and with an ability that is bringing remarkable results.

Indeed, the look backward and forward to-day is most encouraging for woman. She has made wonderful progress in the march onward and upward. She is helping make a good world better, better and happier, for the women of to-day and for the women of to-morrow. Women can celebrate the Fourth of July this year with fervent patriotism that they live in an age and a country where they are free to work out their destiny.

NAPOLEON'S GREAT FIGHT.

July 5.—When Napoleon wanted a bride he never tried the conventional "steady company," bon-bon, opera-going or bouquet-throwing. That was too easy going for him. He started a war so on July 5, 1808 he had him at the battle of Wagram one of the most bloody of the campaign waged by Napoleon against Austria and the Austrians, Charles and John. Austria had just concluded the treaty of Pressburg when she began to regret her haste and to realize that Austria was, after all, merely a battle that had frightened the Emperors of Russia and Austria, without figuring that the army of the Archdukes Charles and John were then marching to their aid from Hungary. The years 1806-7 were spent in preparing to take a crack at Napoleon and an army of 200,000 was raised. France gathered 200,000 and the battles of Austerlitz, Wagram and Eckmühl followed in which Napoleon came out first best. The next move of the French was toward Vienna. The fighting now centered near the Danube and 20,000 lives were lost on both sides. Napoleon proved the victor and with the fall of the Austrian capital Napoleon took all the real estate he wanted from everybody and forced the emperor to give his daughter, Marie Louise in marriage to Napoleon.

JULY, burn thy loving breast, And give thy child one hour of rest; One little hour to lie unseen Beneath thy scarf of leafy green." —O. W. Holmes.

JELLY-MAKING TIME.

Jelly-making time will soon be here, and a word in season may prove profitable. We hear so much about good and bad luck in jelly making as in other processes of cookery, but as there is no such thing as luck we must look to science to explain the success or failure.

We find that the principle which thickens jelly is the pectin in fruit, and that some fruits have very little, while others, in different degrees of ripeness, have more. In making jelly we learn that we must combine the fruits that have a large proportion of pectin with those that have little. Another element most necessary in jelly making after the pectin, is acid; a fruit that has the pectin and the acid is the ideal fruit for jelly making. Such fruits as currants, crab apple, and grapes make good jelly.

Another delicate point which has had much discussion is the amount of sugar to use to a pint of juice, and how long to cook the jelly. At all before adding the sugar. Too much boiling after the sugar is added will make the jelly a dark color.

Juices that are diluted with water will be found to need more boiling than those undiluted. Usually fall fruits, because of the addition of water, will need about thirty minutes in all, while the summer fruits, like currants, will not take more than eight or ten.

The juices should be boiled and skimmed before the addition of the sugar, and if the sugar is well heated before adding, the process of cooking is much hastened.

It is best to boil the fruit juice alone the first half or more, of the whole time of cooking before adding the sugar.

Probably too much sugar is more often the cause of failure than any other in jelly making. To rich juices practically undiluted, an equal measure of sugar may be safely used, but when using diluted juices one-half to not over three-fourths of the measure should be used. It is much better to have too little than too much.

TALK TO HOUSE-KEEPERS

(By Nellie L. Horn.)

"Back of the loaf is the snowy flour, And back of the flour the mill. Back of the mill, is the wheat and the shower."

And the sun, and the Father's will. There is no question in the mind of any one to the precedence of home baked bread over baker's bread, both as to palatability and as to the nutritive elements contained. All good housekeepers understand the process of bread making, but all do not know the possibilities of the bread sponge. When, as children, we used to watch grandmother on baking day, there were all sorts of wonderful things that she could materialize out of the common bread sponge. There were "twisters" and doughnuts, cinnamon rolls and "fried pies," coffee cake and "dough cake."

The "twisters" and doughnuts were mixed in the same way, but shaped differently. To a pint of light sponge add one cup of sugar, one-half cup of melted butter or lard, one well beaten egg, one teaspoon of cinnamon, all-spice and cloves mixed, and one teaspoon of soda dissolved in three tablespoons of warm water. Mix stiff with flour, and let rise one hour. Roll the dough thin, cut into narrow strips, twist, and pinch the ends firmly together. Lay also from twenty to thirty minutes. Fry in hot lard, remembering that it takes longer to fry risen dough than that made with baking powder. When fried, sprinkle with granulated sugar. For doughnuts, shape with a blunt cutter, and proceed as with "twisters."

To make cinnamon rolls, take about a quart of the bread sponge when it is ready to mould into loaves, and roll it out about half an inch thick. Spread thickly with a mixture of a large half cup of butter and one cup of brown sugar creamed together, and highly seasoned with cinnamon. Roll up, pinching the edge down, and cut the roll in slices about half an inch thick. Place the slices in a well buttered pan, set in a warm place to rise, and when light bake.

For the "fried pies," take the dough when it is ready to be moulded into loaves, and roll out as thin as possible. Cut into six inch squares, put a spoonful of mince meat or jam or cooked fruit in the center, and pinch the edges firmly up together. Let rise for twenty or thirty minutes, then fry in deep, hot fat until done. These are delicious, and are much more wholesome for children than the baked pies.

The coffee cakes are delightfully simple and good. To a pint of light sponge add a large mixing spoon of melted butter, two tablespoons of sugar and a well beaten egg. Beat the mixture well, and mix stiff with flour. Let it rise until light, roll out about an inch thick, and put in a large, flat, well buttered tin. Spread thickly with a mixture of butter, brown sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg, and let it rise until it has doubled its size. Then bake.

The "dough cake" or spiky morsels, has for its foundation one cup of dough that is ready to be moulded into loaves. Mix in with the hands, half a cup of melted butter, one cup of sugar, and two eggs beaten without separating. Then add one cup of raisins, one teaspoon of cinnamon, one-half teaspoon of cloves, and a little nutmeg. Lastly, add half a teaspoon of soda dissolved in a little warm water. Put the well beaten mixture into a bread pan, and bake at once in a moderate oven for an hour.

Modern cooks have added one more most excellent recipe to the foregoing tried and true ones of our childhood days—the whole wheat nut bread. To one pint of the sponge add one teaspoon of sugar, one egg beaten with a saltspoon of salt, and one cup of nutmeats (broken, not chopped). Mix in enough whole wheat flour to make a firm dough, place in a buttered bread pan, let rise, and bake. If preferred, it may be allowed to rise once in the mixing bowl before putting in the tin.

Do Your Cooking in the Cool

A hot kitchen is little better than a prison in summer. But the range is there, so all the cooking and the washing must be done there, too.

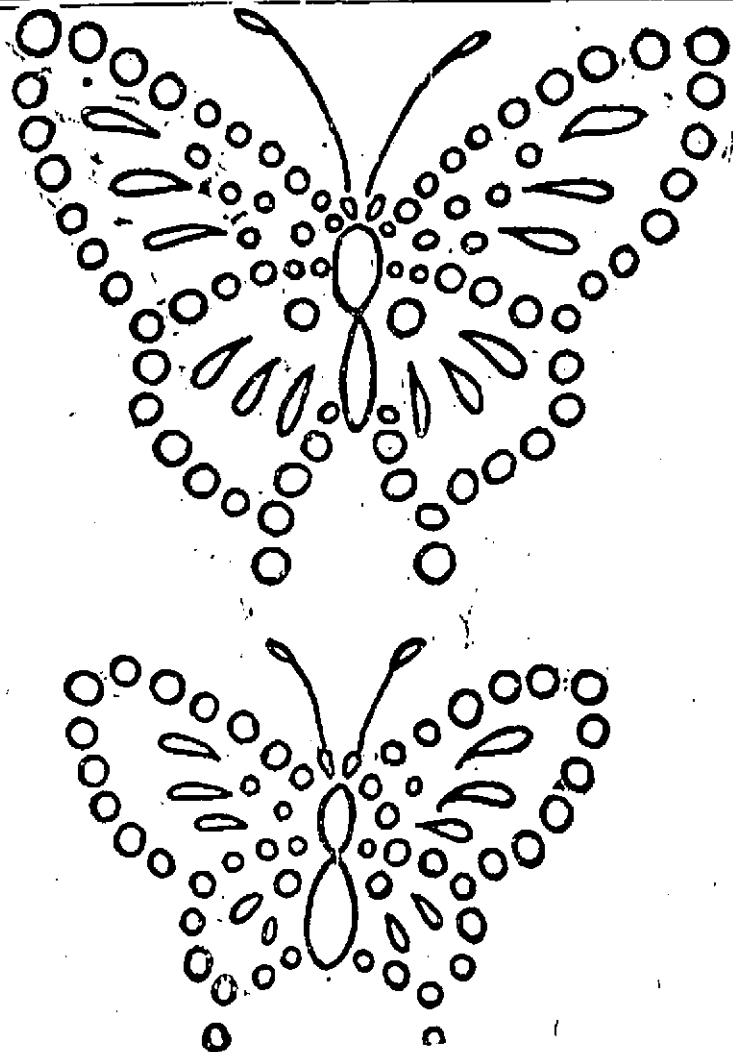

What a relief it would be to move the range where you pleased. You can do this with a New Perfection Oil Cook-stove—cook your dinner out on the porch, if you like. It is the only range that is really portable—that works equally well in any place. There are no connections to be made, as in a gas range; no wiring, as with an electric stove; no sooty flues and ash-filled grates, as with coal or wood.

The long, enameled chimneys carry the heat directly up to saucepans, oven or boiler; you get full value from your fuel, without waste.

SPRING "HOUSE CLEANING."

Apples correct biliousness and lettuce and strawberries are good in anemia, but they only supply what nature needs. Only nature cures sickness. Nature will always cure, if we do not force her to spend so much time (or vitality) house cleaning that she has none left for making repairs. We put into the stomach a mixture of strange things that together form a very indigestible compound, requiring three times the vitality needed to digest what we really need for the body's nourishment. And so nature is constantly kept busy cleaning house, until one day a crisis comes and she "catches" cold or fever, starts a big fire and burns the accumulated rubbish all up. She is very likely to do this in the spring when there is an unusually large accumulation of waste, after the winter's heavy feeding, lack of air and exercise, and when there are more germs around. We eat a little lettuce or fresh fruit and nature takes the hint that house cleaning time has come. Grandmother's idea of a little spring medicine was not far wrong, though sulphur is a heroic remedy. Proper eating makes all this unnecessary—if the thought is right.

A Stern Necessity.

The man who never says the wrong thing has to be silent a good deal of the time.

Railroad Man Writes Remarkable Letter

In 1903 and 1904, I was a terrible sufferer for about five months with kidney and bladder trouble. I could not sleep nights and was obliged to get up ten or fifteen times to urinate. I passed mucus and blood continually. One doctor said I was going into consumption and gave me up to die. Had two other doctors but received no help from either of them and am sure I would have been in my grave had I not seen your advertisement in the "Daily Eagle Star." After taking several bottles of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-root I was entirely cured.

In the last two years I have been a railroad fireman and have passed two examinations for my kidneys successfully so that I know that my kidneys are in excellent condition now as a result of your great preparation. Yours very truly, GEORGE KENNELER, 1422 Mary St., Marinette, Wis.

Personally appeared before me this 25th of September, 1909, George Kenner, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact. HENRY GRAESS, Notary Public, Door County, Wis.

BRITZ HEADQUARTERS

BY MARION BARBER

ILLUSTRATIONS BY JIM

Mrs. Delaroché gasped, and despite the hand, sank back again to her pillow. She could still feel, however, or fancied she could, the icy rim of the metal that had touched her brow. This was a great feat of imagination for Mrs. Delaroché.

"That's right; he still!" continued the voice. "If you know what's good for you."

Tough though the voice was, it was carefully subdued. It could not have been heard in the corridor. Mrs. Delaroché drew a deep, shuddering breath, and was evidently on the point of making another attempt to speak when the metallic ring touched her forehead again, chilling her to silence, and the voice went on:

"See here, lady, I've got no time to waste with you. Just you stay where you are, and don't make a sound, unless you want to get this!" and the metal was pressed a little harder to her forehead. "I'm going to get out of this room quietly, and I'm going right now. If you make any noise for the next five minutes, I'll blow your head off!"

The cold pressure was removed from her forehead, and the burglar moved about the room. The thick carpet and doubtless the felt soles on the man's feet as auxiliaries, made his steps soundless. He went from her dressing table to a writing desk, lighting each in turn with a vivid circle of rays from an electric pocket torch, but holding the illuminating device always in such position that no faintest gleam fell upon himself. Not for a moment, however, did he slacken his alertness sufficiently for Mrs. Delaroché to have a good chance to get to the inner room. He pretended to search thoroughly several places where money or jewels might be kept, but, even to a woman of her slow wit, it was apparent he did so in a half-hearted way. Millicent felt assured the man knew just what he had taken from beneath her pillow, and that he was satisfied with it. He showed that to be true when he gave up the pretended search without so much as trying the handle of a small safe in a far corner of the room. Returning to the bedside, he renewed his warning, throwing so much savage meaning into his words that Mrs. Delaroché was certain there was no pretense about that.

Then he walked to the door giving on the corridor, turned the handle cautiously, thrust his head through a second opening, and looked up and down the hall. Evidently reassured, he opened the door, stepped outside, and closed it swiftly and silently. There was not a sound to indicate whether he had gone along the corridor, or still stood just outside the door. Mrs. Delaroché waited, listening intently in the hope of hearing his footsteps, but she listened vainly. She waited perhaps a minute, for she had no desire to hazard a shot from that terrible thing the burglar had pressed against her brow. Then her courage oozed back, and she bounded to the floor, screaming with all her might, pausing only long enough to snatch a peignoir and throw it about her shoulders as she pulled open the outer door of her suite and sent her shrieks shrieking down the long hall. Her cries, for she was a magnificently constructed animal of most expansive lung power, not only echoed far along the corridor, but penetrated even the sound-proof doors of the other apartments. The disturbance, she made was alarmingly novel to the exclusive calm of the Hotel Renaissance. Doors were flung open, heads popped out, and a dozen inquiries were flung at her from as many parts of the hall; but Mrs. Delaroché had exhausted her coherence in framing that one purpose of screaming with all her might until some man of action should appear to her assistance. She did not waste any strength in articulation. She simply screamed, and so eloquent were her shrieks that although she uttered no concrete word, only a few of them were needed to tell the more intelligent of her auditors that she had been robbed, and that what she had lost was of priceless value to her.

Before the fullness of her cries died away in a scattering fire of gasping sobs, half a dozen pajamaed specters were racing down the corridor in the direction they deemed the burglar had taken. What account they would have given of themselves had they come up with the fugitive is conjectural. They were spared the disagreeable necessity of submitting their courage to that test, for as the burglar turned a corner of the hall many yards in advance of his pursuers, he was tripped by a foot adroitly interpolated in his path, and when he recovered his breath after a jarring fall, it was to find two men of sturdy build sitting upon him as composedly as if nature had planned him for a conversation chair. The pistol he had carried in his hands throughout the pursuit was snatched from his grasp, and although he struggled furiously, his arms were dragged behind his back and handcuffs were snapped upon his wrists. Then he was dragged to his feet by four insistent arms and impelled with much vigor along the hallway in the reverse direction to that which he had followed.

Unmistakable was the rejoicing of the pajama squad at the sight of his captivity. Undenial heroics was its surge toward him. Faces grim with postscript bravery were thrust into the prisoner's, and voices ranging from mockery to indignation bombarded him with questions. All of which the prisoner met with sullen silence and with looks that made the squad retreat a pace or two in spite of the firmness with which his captors held him. Mrs. Delaroché's fading screams guided the little group to her apartment, where the hands of ministering angels had adjusted her peignoir to its normal position upon her Junoesque form and fastened its fluttering ribbons in becoming bows. She there received the heroes of the man hunt with astonishing composure.

"Is this the man who robbed you, madam?" asked one of the men who had caught the burglar. He was the house detective. "Stand behind him, Jim," he said to his colleague, a porter with the fullback's shoulders.

"It must be," said Mrs. Delaroché, "but I cannot tell by his face. I did not see it. It looks like the man, though. Make him speak."

But that task was beyond the house detective's powers. Irresponsible though his mind might be as compared with the city's sleuths and blue-coats, he hardly felt justified in employing the most medieval forms of torture to accomplish that purpose. Seemingly, nothing short of the boot, the thumbscrew and the Iron Maiden would drag a word from the captive. He maintained his sullen silence, although it might be said he broke it in a way, for the furious looks he cast at the pajama squad were almost audible. Those looks caused several of the squad's doughty heroes suddenly to realize the unconventionality of their attire, and to send them precipitously in search of dressing gowns. One or two of them remained, however, and the house detective, who, in hotels as frostily patrician as the Renaissance, did not often have an opportunity to hold the center of the stage, was fairly well content with his audience.

"Now, then, you!" he said, brusquely addressing the prisoner, "speak up. What were you doing here?"

"He got my jewels!" cried Mrs. Delaroché.

The prisoner turned one of his sullen looks upon her, but, conscious that she was robed as daintily as the most fastidious society actress in the Du Barryest of bedroom scenes could be, her equanimity was not so vulnerable as that of the deserters from the pajama squad.

"He took the whole case of jewels from under my pillow," she continued, addressing the house detective. "They must be in his possession still, unless he dropped them while he was running away."

"We will soon find out," said the leading man. "Jim, go through him!"

"To that?" "prig!" "Madam?" asked the house detective.

"Yes, yes," said Mrs. Delaroché, eagerly. "Oh, dear, I am so glad he did not escape with it. What would—"

She checked herself hastily.

"You must come to me in the morning, Mr.—Mr.—for a reward," she added in tones so sweetly suggestive of a golden querdon that the detective's eyes glistened.

"Thank you, madam, that is not necessary," he replied perfunctorily. "Let's see what else this fellow has got."

He and the porter explored the captive's pockets further, but found nothing more in the way of loot. Mrs. Delaroché looked hastily through her desk and dressing table and told the man apparently nothing else was missing.

"Then," said the house detective, "I guess there is nothing else for us to do but to turn this burglar over to the police. May we use your telephone, madam?"

Mrs. Delaroché gladly nodded assent, and the sleuth continued:

"Jim, call up Headquarters, and have a couple of men sent here to take this fellow away."

The effect of that command upon the prisoner startled everyone. Not only did it cause him to break his sullen silence, but it drew from him words that made the house detective involuntarily loose his hold on the man and step back, staring. Jim's jaw fell, and Mrs. Delaroché gazed at the fellow, wide-eyed.

"I can save you that trouble," said the burglar. "You need not telephone for the Central Office men. I am Lieutenant Detective Britz of Headquarters. And then," he nodded toward the silver casket, "are the missing Missions diamonds that were stolen from the richest woman in America."

Turning to Mrs. Delaroché abruptly, he said:

"Madam, how do you come to be in possession of these jewels?"

All the panting loveliness of Mrs. Delaroché shivered as the sharp question bored its way to her inner consciousness. It was now her turn to be silent. She looked at the Headquarters man as if he held in his hand her life, liberty, and whatever chance remained to her of happiness. A gleam of appeal glowed in her beautiful eyes for a moment. Plainly, if she did not speak it was not for lack of will. Her words were as frozen as the normal condition of her thoughts. She put her hands to her breast and gazed at the Central Office man as pitiously as a woman of her Junoesque charms could be expected to do. The ingenious role was impossible to Mrs. Delaroché; but had it not been so, undoubtedly she would have assumed it in this emergency.

"Answer me, madam; this calls for an immediate explanation. You told this man these jewels belonged to you. How does it come you have the diamonds everybody in New York knows as the Maharajah necklace of Mrs. Doris Missioner?"

Mrs. Delaroché still struggled faintly for speech. Her lips quivered; her eyes alternately closed and then were fixed upon the detective, and a tremor, beginning at the crown of her adorable head, moved in waves to her perfect

—the Jewels Are Mrs. Missioner's.

feet. She sank into a chair and let her head fall upon her arms as they stretched inertly across a little table. There was no smallest streak of pity in the look Detective Britz bent upon her. He had dealt with women of her type before many times, he told himself, and now that he was so near the heart of the great Missioner mystery, it was not his purpose to be influenced in the slightest degree by the distress of a Diana, to say nothing of an Aphrodite. Dry soba choked the woman. Her eyes, strained at their tendons so painfully that tears would have been a divine relief. Whether she was grieved or frightened was not so apparent as that she was sorely distressed. Minutes passed before she lifted her face and once more looked at the detective. The house sleuth and his porter had retreated a yard or more, and the erstwhile pajama squad, now an as-fortified force of Cosacks and Bedouins in a varied array of dressing gowns and bathrobes, looked and listened in hushed expectancy.

"Come, Mrs. Delaroché," said Britz, sternly. "You really must not waste any more of my time. I have spent an hour in getting these jewels away from you, and I don't intend to put in many more words in getting the facts from you. You have got to answer soon or late, and you may as well do it at once."

If there was to be any third degree in her case, the detective was determined to apply it then and there.

"They were given to me," said the woman faintly.

"By whom?"

"By—a friend of mine," she replied.

"And his name?" inquired the detective curtly.

"I do not care to tell his name," said Mrs. Delaroché, who had recovered a little of her calmness.

"You must tell it," Britz insisted.

"I cannot," she said.

"But I tell you must!" returned the detective. "Don't you see you have got to tell it to spare yourself?"

Amusing Obstacle Ride. 10-31.

Writing about the visit of the German crown prince to Egypt, a Boston Post correspondent says: "Europeans who come here, no matter how devoted they are to the automobile, must become riders of donkeys, and it was easy to find contestants for the royal lady's entertainment. One of the obstacles consisted of five empty barrels set about two feet apart. The rider was expected to 'wind in and out' between these barrels mounted on a mule and leading a second animal of the same uncertain disposition. One of the ladies accomplished the task. And the donkeys had much fun." 10-31.
